Nabanna issues strict guidelines to ensure full utilization of project funds

MI News Service, Kolkata: In a bid to ensure that allocated funds for various projects are fully utilized and not returned unspent, the West Bengal government has issued strict deadlines for all departments. Nabanna, the state secretariat, released an official directive on Wednesday, emphasizing the importance of timely and transparent fund expenditure.

Towards the end of every financial year, a rush to spend leftover funds is often observed across government departments. This last-minute expenditure spree not only disrupts financial planning but also increases the likelihood of errors. Taking a firm stance, the state finance department has made it clear that any laxity in fund utilization will not be tolerated. The directive further underscores the necessity of spending funds meant for public welfare efficiently and within the stipulated time frame. Additionally, the government has stressed the need for absolute transparency in the expenditure process.

Alongside the financial directives, the government has also ensured that salaries, pensions, and monthly allowances for government employees, educational institutions, libraries, and panchayat workers for the month of March will be disbursed by April 2. The notification warns that a large influx of pending bills at the end of the financial year could create bottlenecks. To prevent such issues, all departments have been instructed to submit bills systematically and within designated timelines.

A structured schedule has been provided for the submission of bills to the Treasury or the Pay and Accounts Office. This includes clarifications regarding outstanding payments, retirement benefits, and travel allowance (TA) bills, ensuring that no procedural confusion arises. As per the directive, departments will not be allowed to submit any bills to the Pay and Accounts Office or the Treasury after March 28. Moreover, any bills previously returned or objected to by the department must be rectified and resubmitted by March 17, with a prior deadline of March 13 for identifying such cases. In a firm warning, the government has stated that "cheques, nil bills, and PL transfer statements will not be accepted after the financial year ends. No advance payments will be approved unless specifically sanctioned by the finance department." This measure aims to prevent unnecessary financial irregularities and ensure a smooth transition into the next fiscal year.

By implementing these strict deadlines, the state government aims to mainfinancial discipline tain across departments. The move is also expected to reduce last-minute procedural errors and ensure that development funds reach their intended beneficiaries on time.

As the financial year-end approaches, all eyes will be on how efficiently the departments adhere to these deadlines and whether the new measures lead to a more structured financial workflow within the administration. Leaders of employee unions have welcomed the decision to ensure 100% expenditure and maintain transparency in project funds. India imposes nearly 100 per cent import duty on electric vehicles (EVs), making it expensive for foreign automakers to sell their cars there. This policy protects local companies like Tata Motors. However, in March, India introduced a new EV policy, reducing import taxes to as low as 15 per cent only if a carmaker invests at least USD 500 million and sets up a factory in the country.

Ganja worth Rs 1cr seized in Howrah

MI News Service, Kolkata: In a major crackdown on narcotics, CID and Narcotics Cell officials seized 711 kg of ganja worth 1 crore from a residence in Bauria, Howrah. The operation was conducted late Wednesday night in the KazircharaAshwathtala area, leading to the arrest of Sheikh Majed, who is suspected to be involved in large-scale drug trafficking. According to police sources, Majed allegedly smuggled the ganja from Odisha and stored it at his residence for distribution across Howrah and neighboring districts. In addition to the seized contraband, authorities also confiscated two vehicles and three mobile phones. Investigators believe Majed was part of a larger drug network, possibly operating across multiple states. The police are now focusing on identifying other individuals linked to the operation. Further interrogation is expected to reveal key details about the extent of the trafficking network and its possible interstate connections.

TMC files privilege notice against Hiran

MI News Service, Kolkata: The Trinamool Congress (TMC) has filed a privilege notice against BJP MLA Hiran Chatterjee following his allegations against the state government during his speech on Wednesday. Chatterjee claimed that the awards received by the state government were granted in exchange for money, triggering strong protests from TMC MLAs.

The notice alleges that Chatterjee's remarks violated the privileges of the state government. The matter has been referred to the Privileges Committee, which will review the evidence and documents submitted by Chatterjee. The BJP MLA has been asked to provide supporting evidence for his claims by March 19. In response, Chatterjee stated that he possesses all necessary documents and will submit them to the committee within the stipulated time. This development comes amid an already heated atmosphere in the assembly, with similar breach of privilege notices recently filed against Leader of Opposition SuvenduAdhikari and BJP MLA Agnimitra Paul. The Privileges Committee will examine the matter and determine further action.

The forensic report confirms that both women were slain with precise brutality, their throats and wrist veins mercilessly severed. Meanwhile, Priyamvada was poisoned, yet multiple injury marks on her body suggest she endured considerable agony before succumbing. Medical examiners discovered semi-digested food with a yellowish-white hue and traces of a medicinal odor in her stomach, indicating that she had been poisoned, with death occurring three to six hours after her final meal. The estimated time of demise for all three victims places the murders between 36 and 48 hours before the autopsy, implying they were killed prior to Tuesday evening. A crucial revelation from the autopsy highlights that the perpetrator was right-handed, as the deep incisions on the victims' throats ran from left to right. The extent of these wounds suggests the use of a sharp weapon, causing fatal blood loss. The case Initially emerged on Wednesday following a road accident near the EM Bypass, involving PrasunDeyand PranayDey, husbands of Romi and Sudeshna. Their minor son was also in the vehicle at the time. However, as the investigation unfolded, an unsettling timeline surfaced, casting doubt on the circumstances surrounding the murders.

pvt schools' fee regulation bill

MI News Service, Kolkata: The West Bengal govern-ment's proposed Education Bill, aimed at regulating excessive fee hikes and teacher salary structures in private schools, has hit a legal roadblock. The bill, which seeks to introduce checks on arbitrary fee increases, has been awaiting the Governor's signature for over a year. Justice BiswajitBasu of the Calcutta High Court questioned the state government's stance on the bill while hearing a case related to unjustified fee hikes in private schools. The next hearing is scheduled for Friday. During the hearing, Justice Basu re-marked, "Some schools even offer horse riding or camel racing lessons, but a basic fee structure must be maintained. Many schools treat additional charges as a source of extra income."

Responding to the court, state counsel BiswabrataBasuMallick revealed that the Education Bill has been pending with the Governor for over a year. He argued that since the Governor has not approved it, the government has been unable to take further action."If the Governor clears this bill, it will benefit a large section of the public," he added. Justice Basu then questioned why the state education minister was not taking proactive steps to resolve the matter. He also suggested that West Bengal could follow Rajasthan's model for private school regulation, urging the government to review the policy framework used in that state.

Later, Advocate General Kishore Dutta ap-He further stated, "Several petitions have been peared in court and assured that the governfiled against unjustified fee hikes in private schools ment would consult the edacross the state. ITCX 2025: India's Largest Temple Convention Brings Together 1,500+ Temples, Political Leaders, and Religious Heads

TIRUPATI: The International Temples Convention & Expo (ITCX) 2025, held in the spiritual heart of Tirupati, served as India's largest and most influential gathering on temple management, concluded with an unprecedented congregation of 1,500+ temples, esteemed political leaders, and revered religious heads from across Hinduism, Sikhism, Buddhism, and Jainism.

Value-adding to the narrative of honourable Prime Minister NarendraModi'sViksit Bharat 2047, the event served as a transformative platform for shaping the future of temple governance, sustainability, and technological integration while reinforcing the timeless values of Sanatana Dharma. With thought-provoking discussions on temple autonomy, smart temples mission, and global best practices, ITCX 2025 has set a new benchmark in reimagining temples as centres of religious, cultural, and societal progress. Envisioned by Giresh Kulkarni, founder of ITCX and Temple Connect, and Prasad Lad, ITCX Chairman who is also the Chief WHIP of Maharashtra Legislative Council, the platform has created a ripple effect, opening new avenues for temple leaders to reinvent temples as power centres of Hindu society. With India's temple economy valued at ?4-5 lakh crore, comparable to any major global industry, the discussions emphasized the need to operate temples as professional institutions where the common person's donations directly benefit communities through medical aid, education, healthcare, and large-scale food distribution through langars. In only its second edition, ITCX has solidified its role as the driving force in reshaping temple management. Honourable Prime Minister NarendraModi, in a letter of appreciation, said: "ITCX reflects the inherent unity in diversity of temples globally, and is in a way, a celebration of the spirit of VasudhaivaKutumbakam visualisation of the entire Earth as one family. The 21st century belongs to knowledge-driven societies. It is particularly in this context that the efforts of Temple Connect to document, digitise and share this rich heritage acquire greater significance.

Cutting funding for science can have consequences for economy US technological competitiveness

TUCSON (US) : America has already lost its global competitive edge in science, and funding cuts proposed in early 2025 may further a precipitous decline.

Proposed cuts to the federal agencies that fund scientific undercut could research America's global competitiveness, with negative impacts on the economy and the ability to attract and train the next generation of researchers. I'm an astronomer, and I have been a senior administrator at the University of Arizona's College of Science. Because of these roles, I'm invested in the future of scientific research in the United States. I'm worried funding cuts could mean a decline in the amount and quality of research published - and that some potential discoveries won't get made

THE ENDLESS FRONTIER : A substantial part of US prosperity after World War II was due to the country's investment in science and technology.

Vannevar Bush founded the company that later became Raytheon and was the president of the Carnegie Institution. In 1945, he delivered a report to President Franklin D. Roosevelt called The Endless Frontier.

In this report, Bush argued that scientific research was essen-purely exploratory research, has enormous downstream benefits. Quantum computing is a prime example. Quantum computing originated 40 years ago, based on the fundamental physics of quantum mechanics. It has matured only in the past few years to the point where quantum computers can solve some problems faster than classical computers. Worldwide, basic research pays for itself and has more impact on economic growth than applied research. This is because basic research expands the shared knowledge base that innovators can draw on

For example, a biotech advocacy firm calculated that every dollar of funding to the National Institutes of Health generates US$2.46 in economic activity, which is why a recent cut of $9 billion to its funding is so disturb-ing. The American public also values science. In an era of declining trust in public institutions, more than 3 in 4 Americans say research investment is creating employment opportunities, and a similar percentage are confident that scientists act in the public's best interests SCIENCE SUPERPOWER SLIP-PING : By some metrics, American science is preeminent. Researchers working in America have won over 40% of the science Nobel Prizes - three times more than people from any other country. American research universities are magnets for scientific talent, and the United States spends more on research and development than any other country.

This definition of innovation goes beyond research in labs and the number of scientific papers published to include improvements to outcomes in the form of new goods or new services

Among American educators and workers in technical fields, 3 in 4 think the United States has already lost the competition for global leadership. THREATS TO SCIENCE FUNDING

Against this backdrop, threats made in the beginning of President Donald Trump's second term to science funding are ominous. Trump's first wave of executive orders caused chaos at science agencies as they struggled to interpret the directives. Much of the anxiety involved excising language and programs relating to diversity, equity and inclusion, or גוֹע. DEI. The Science National Foundation is particularly in the crosshairs. In late January 2025, it froze the routine review and approval of grants and new expenditures, impeding future research, and has been vetting grants to make sure they comply with orders from the U.S. president

The National Institutes of Health announced on Feb 7, 2024 a decision to limit overhead rates to 15% which sent many

Seeking Expert Guidance on the Process of IVF

Howrah: Dr. Sonali Mandal is a life-changing process for many couples facing infertility. It involves complex medical procedures, and the emotional journey can be overwhelming. Seeking expert guidance from a fertility specialist is essential to navigate this intricate path. These experts provide critical insights into the IVF process, helping couples understand their reproductive health and explore the most suitable treatment options.

"Seeking expert guidance on the IVF process is essential for navigating this complex and emotional journey. Fertility specialists provide crucial insights into your individual needs, helping to assess your reproductive health, explain treatment options, and guide you through each stage of IVF. From initial consultations to embryo transfer, a knowledgeable team ensures that you understand the process, manage expectations, and receive personalized care," mentions Dr. Sonali Mandal Bandyopadhyay, IVF Specialist at Birla Fertility and IVF. Howrah. Fertility specialists assess the medical history, conduct necessary tests, and help identify any underlying conditions that may affect conception. Once a personalized treatment plan is developed, they provide thorough explanations of each step, from ovarian stimulation to egg retrieval, fertilization. and embryo transfer.

Dr. Sonali adds, "With the right expert support, you can make informed decisions, reduce uncertainty, and increase your chances of success, all while feeling supported and empowered throughout the IVF experience.

The support and guidance provided by experts also help in managing the emotional aspects of IVF. Emotional wellbeing plays a vital role in the success of IVF, and experts offer reassurance, answering questions and addressing concerns at every stage of the process tial to the country's economic well-being and security. His advocacy led to the founding of the National Science Foundation and science policy as we know it today. He argued that a centralized approach to science funding would efficiently distribute resources to scientists doing research at universities

Since 1945, advances in science and technology have driven 85% of American economic growth. Science and innovation are the engines of prosperity, where research generates new technologies, innovations and solutions that improve the quality of life and drive economic development. This causal relationship, where scientific research leads to innovations and inventions that promote economic growth, is true around the world. The imporof basic research. tance Investment in research and development has tripled since 1990. but that growth has been funded by the business sector for applied research, while federal investment in basic research has stagnated. The distinction matters, because basic research, which is

But there is intense competition to be a science superpower, and several metrics suggest the United States is slipping. Research and development spending as a percentage of GDP has fallen from a high of 1.9% in 1964 to 0.7% in 2021. Worldwide, the United States ranked 12th for this metric in 2021, behind South Korea and European countries. In number of scientific researchers as a portion of the laboUr force, the United States ranks 10th. Metrics for research quality tell a similar story. In 2020, China overtook the United States in having the largest share of the top 1% most-cited papers. China also leads the world in the number of patents, and it has been outspending the US on research in the past few decades. Switzerland and Sweden eclipse the United States in terms of sci-researchers reeling though it has since been temporarily blocked by a judge. The National Institutes of Health is the world's largest funder of biomedical research, and these indirect costs provide support for the operation and maintenance of lab facilities. They are essential for doing research. The new administration has proposed deeper cuts. The National Science Foundation has been told to prepare for the loss of half of its staff and two-thirds of its funding. Other federal science agencies are facing similar threats of layoffs and funding cuts.

THE IMPACT : Congress already failed to deliver on its 2022 commitment to increase research funding, and federal funding for science agencies is at a 25-year low. As the president's proposals reach Congress for approval or negotiation, they will test the traditionally bipartisan support science has held. If Congress cuts budgets further. I believe the impact on job creation, the training of young scientists and the health of the economy will be substantial.

Opposing arrows of time emerge from certain quantum systems: Study

DC [US], Washington Researchers at the University of Surrey made a thought-provoking discovery. A new study reveals that opposing arrows of time can theoretically emerge from certain quantum systems. Dr Andrea Rocco, Associate Professor in Physics and Mathematical Biology at the University of Surrey and lead author of the study, said: "One way to explain this is when you look at a process like spilt milk spreading across a table, it's clear that time is moving forward. But if you were to play that in reverse, like a movie, you'd immediately know something was wrong -- it would be hard to believe milk could just gather back into a glass. "However, there are processes, such as the motion of a pendulum, that look just as believable in reverse. The puzzle is that, at the most fundamental level, the laws of physics resemble the pendulum; they do not account for irreversible processes. Our findings suggest that while our common experience tells us that time only moves one way, we are just unaware that the opposite direction would have been equally possible." The study, pub-in Scientific Reports, lished explored how a quantum system -the world of the sub-atomic -interacts with its environment, known as an 'open quantum system'. Researchers investigated why we perceive time as moving in one direction and whether this perception emerges from open quantum mechanics.

To simplify the problem, the research team made two key assumptions. First, they treated the vast environment surrounding the system in such a way that they could focus only on the quantum system itself. Second, they assumed that the environment like the entire universe -- is so large that energy and information dissipate into it, never returning. This approach enabled them to examine how time emerges as a one-way phenomenon, even though, at the microscopic level, time could theoretically move in both directions. Even after apply ing these assumptions, the system behaved the same way whether time moved forward or backwards. This discovery provided a mathematical foundation for the idea that time-reversal symmetry still holds in open quantum systems .

The Future of Spine Surgery - Advancing with Robotics and Innovation

BANKURA : Spinal disorders are a significant health concern worldwide, affecting people across different age groups, with the most common issue being low back pain which impacts 60% of men and 80% of women, particularly those aged 50+ years. Spinal stenosis is another common condition among the elderly (50+ years), while lumbar disc issues, including herniation (37%) and degeneration (33%), predominantly affect individuals aged 30-50 years. Scoliosis, seen in 2-3% of children aged 10-18 years, is another prevalent condition, while spinal cord injuries are more common in young adults (20-40 years).

In this regard, Manipal Hospital Old Airport Road, Bengaluru, organized a Manipal Community Care Program at Bankura on 16th February 2025 to raise awareness about spinal health and offer guidance on managing age-related spinal issues. The event featured interactive sessions with leading spine specialists - Dr. S. Vidyadhara, Chairman, HOD & Consultant - Spine Surgery & Consultant - Robotic Spine Surgery; Dr. Balamurugan T, Consultant - Spine Care; and Dr. Abhishek Soni, Consultant -Spine Care, who addressed all patient care needs, focusing on newer therapies and advanced management. About 65+ members from different associations, Bankura Welfare including the Association, Bankura Chamber of Commerce, Bankura Marwari Association, and Bankura Women Social Welfare Forum, attended the program.

For nearly 2 decades, the Manipal Robotic Spine Care Centre at Manipal Hospital Old Airport Road has been a pioneer in spine care, successfully performing over 20,000+ spinal surgeries and 60,000+ spinal injections, while treating more than 2.5 lakh outpatients. Recently established in 2023, the Manipal Institute of Robotic Spine Surgery, armed with the Mazor X Stealth Edition Spine Robotics system, has already performed close to 1000 robotic spine surgeries across all age groups. Notably, 40% of our all spine cases are from West Bengal and Northeast India.

Dr. S. Vidyadhara emphasized the significance of robotics in enhancing surgical outcomes. He stated, "Utilizing robotic guidance, we have achieved unparalleled precision in scoliosis correction, cervical corpectomy, cervical pedicle screw fixation, vertebroplasty, and kyphoplasty. The AI-powered preoperative planning and real-time intraoperative guidance enable us surgeons to perform these complex procedures with increased confidence and efficiency. For patients, these techniques ensure faster recovery, less pain, and shorter hospital stays, allowing patients suffering from spinal deformities, herniated discs, and degenerative spinal conditions to regain mobility and lead pain-free lives.'

Dr. Balamurugan T highlighted the impact of these advancements on managing low back pain and spinal stenosis. He stated, "Robotic spine surgery is revolutionizing the field by allowing us to offer tailored surgical solutions, reducing human error and complications. The spinal alignment post-surgery is better in most patients, leading to accelerating rehabilitation and quicker recovery with reduced postoperative discomfort.'

Dr. Abhishek Soni spoke about the transformative impact of minimally invasive techniques, stating, "Another break-through in spine care, MISS and regenerative therapies like stem cell treatments and biologics help reduce tissue trauma by reducing the need for large incision and aiding in spinal repair and regeneration. In cases of lumbar disc herniation and spinal cord injuries, these advancements allow patients to regain mobility and function much sooner and improve long-term outcomes."

The future of spine surgery is being transformed with cutting-edge technologies such as robotic-assisted procedures leading the way. Innovations in minimally invasive techniques, together with artificial intelligence (AI), multimodal neuromonitoring, and navigation systems are leveraging surgical precision and safety, improving patient outcomes and reducing recovery times.

German Poll: To young Germans ALTERNATIVE FUR DEUTSCHLAND is 'RIGHT' Alternative

A special report from Siddhartha Albertt Majumderr

Whether it is Nick, Thomas, Niklas, Alfred, Jurgen, Klara or Alisa, the young Germans i.e. the German youth are now showing a strong inclination towards far-right social and political movement in Germany. They have come up as the biggest backers or sympathetic to Alternative für Deutschland (AFD)- a party that has been consistently polling second in Germany for more than a year and a half, as the far right here and elsewhere in Europe attracts an increasing number of young people, particularly men, into its orbit. With German National election knocking the door, for those who oppose AFD, it's a

One particular reason why many or most young German men and women have far-right inclination; they say that they are afraid of the number of attacks in Germany involving suspects who were asylum seekers – most recent-ly, the fatal stabbing of a toddler and a man in a park in the Bavarian city of Aschaffenburg, including the very recent Afgan man attacking common people at Bavarian capital of Munich (Munchen). Immigration, especially Muslim immigration is now the principal concern of the German youth, and nation as a whole.

"The people who integrate, who learn, who study here, do their work - I have no problems with them," says Alfred, a student from Berlin university, though he is critical of anyone he sees as taking advantage of the asylum system.

"But these days such statements are seen as hostile," says Alfred. "You're called a Nazi because of Germany's past and this is ridiculous and wrong."

According to many Germans, espe-cially youths, mass immigration has created 'identity crisis' in Germany. To many, ex-Chancellor Angela Merkel's 'faulty' policy of 'mass integration via mass immigration for multi-cultural Germany' is an absolute disaster. It has endangered the very physical existence of the Germans in Germany. Trump's latest policy of 'mass deportation' of immigrants is now getting popularity here in Germany as the Germans fervently believe that the idea of multicultural Germany was preposterous and suicidal as well. Many German youths also feel that the phenomenon of so called 'Nazi guilt' has been deliberately and intentionally put upon the German society only to hinder the growth of the German society and it has been done through decades only as a part of 'greater anti-German conspiracy

Alfred, Thomas and others see it (immigration) as their main concern, especially after a series of attacks in Germany allegedly involving asylum seekers who are mostly Muslims.

The AfD - which has long been accused of anti-migrant rhetoric - is celebrating endorsements from tech billionaire, Elon Musk, who owns the liament in 2024, according to German exit polls the number of under 24-yearolds, both male and female, who voted for the AfD in Germany rose to 16 per cent, up by 11 points from 2019.

This comes at a time of rising general anxiety among young people according to a recent study by the German Institute for Generational Research.

In a sample size of 1,000 Germans aged 16 to 25, anxiety levels were the highest amongst respondents who class themselves as far-right while they were the lowest amongst people who put themselves in the middle of the political spectrum.

Women were more likely to be concerned for their rights and those of minority groups while men were found to be more worried about conservative values that are less based around rights.

AfD supporters often reject the "farright" label, including party leader Al-ice Weidel, who describes the party as a conservative, libertarian movement Dr Rüdiger Maas, from the German think tank the Institute for Generational Research, says parties on the left often focus on themes such as feminism, equality and women's rights.

'Overall, men don't see themselves in these themes," he tells. "That is why they have a tendency to vote further right.'

Hard, populist right parties have also done well in countries such as France, Austria, the Netherlands, Poland, Spain and Italy.

"Sixty per cent of young men under 30 would consider voting for the far right in EU countries and this is much higher than the share among women," says Prof Abou-Chadi, in analysis drawn from a subset of the 2024 European Election Study. MASS MEDIA'S 'RIGHT' MESSAGE As well as gender, migration and economic issues, social media is playing a part in this poll. Platforms like TikTok allow political groups to bypass main-stream, traditional media, which the far right regard as hostile.

It's clear that AfD "dominates" Tik-Tok when compared to other German parties, says Mauritius Dorn from the Institute for Strategic Dialogue (ISD). It has 539,000 followers on its parliamentary account, compared to 158,000 for the SPD who currently have the most seats in the German parliament. And it isn't just official accounts but "considerable number of unofficial fan accounts also help to disseminate the party's content", says Mr Dorn.

Through setting up 10 "perso-na-based" accounts with different user profiles, they found, "those users who are more on the right-wing spectrum... see a lot of AfD content whereas users from the leftist spectrum see a more diverse set of political content.

TikTok has said it doesn't "differentiate" between the right, left or centre of politics and works to stay at the "forefront" of tackling misinformation. Dorn observes that other parties recto stay at home and stricter border controls.

When I press her about whether her views amount to a rejection of multiculturalism she replied no, but believes people should "integrate."

There are certain people who just don't fit in with us Germans," she added but repeatedly insisted she is not racist and doesn't have "anything against foreigners.

YOUNG GERMANS DEFYING 'SO CALLED NAZI GUILT'

In a shopping mall in the city of Chemnitz in Saxony, a group of young men dressed in black, with uniformly short hair, expressed beliefs that homosexuality is wrong and fear that the German "race" is under threat because of the growing migrant community.

They question narratives about their country's past, seemingly a reference to the Nazi era.

Diana Schwitalla has been teaching history and social studies for eight years. She says she has had to confront a case of Holocaust denial in the classroom and has heard other troubling remarks.

"We hear the Second World War was actually a good thing, and there was a reason people died then - and that this is good. Hitler is described as a good man," says Ms Schwitalla.

She adds, "Many students... very young students, {who} say it doesn't matter who I vote for, they'll do what they want 'up there' anyway. The ques-tion of who's 'up there', I don't get an answer to that.

History and social studies teacher Diana Schwitalla says she has heard pupils deny the Holocaust and describe Hitler as a "good man" MAKE GERMANY GREAT AGAIN

(MGGA)

The concept of 'Make Germany Great Again' (MGGA) has quite naturally cropped up in Germany after a very successful stint of MAGA in USA. The AfD, whose signature issues include security, borders and migrant crime, are now even embracing the concept of "remigration" - a buzz-word in Eu-rope's far right that's widely understood to mean mass deportations.

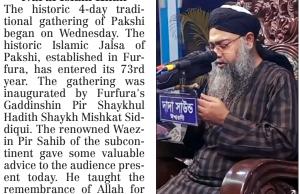

Speaking to people in Germany, it is clear that support for the AfD cannot just be read as some form of protest vote, even if there is frustration with the parties that have traditionally governed Germany. Celina, Dominic Al-fred, Niklas and Nick and many more and others genuinely hope and believe that the AfD could set Germany on the path of radical change. As German origin USA President started the policy of Make America Great Again (MAGA), the present German generations including their predecessors feel that right wing parties like AFD can well initiate 'Make Germany Great Again' (MGGA).

It's still the case that other parties will not go into coalition with the AfD but in January a non-binding motion was passed in the German parliament thanks to AfD votes for the first time.

A nationwide restriction will prohibit Taiwanese institutions from collaborating with or facilitating programs involving these universities. Cheng stated that the policy would be formally announced at an upcoming meeting with college and university deans. The ban applies to all levels of education, including public and private high schools, colleges, universities, and vocational institutions, as part of broader efforts to counter Beijing's influence in Taiwan's education system.

Educational institutions that violate the order will lose government subsidies, Cheng warned, particularly targeting private schools not directly overseen by the Ministry of Education.

MI News Arizona: two people were killed after two small aircraft collided in midair at an Arizona airport on Wednesday, CNN reported, citing authorities.

A Cessna 172S and Lancair 360 MK II collided near the Marana Regional Airport at 8:28 am (local time), as per the preliminary information from the National Transportation Safety Board.

One of two runways at the airport said that the fixedwing single-engine planes "collided while upwind of runway 12." The NTSB said the Cessna landed "uneventfully" and the Lancair affected terrain near the other runway and "a post-impact fire ensured. The Marana Police De-

The incident comes after several aviation incidents which started with midair collision at Ronald Reagan Washington National Airport on January 29, which claimed the lives of 67 people due to a collision between a military helicopter and an American Airlines regional.

Since then, four other aviation incidents have highlighted concerns regarding air safety, including the crash of a medevac plane in Philadelphia, an aircraft that crashed near Alaska's Nome, killing 10 people; a private plane that ran off the runway in Arizona's Scottsdale, killing the pilot on board; and a Delta Air Lines regional jet rolled over on the runway after arrival in Toronto.

Now, as Germany waits to see just how well the far right does in the upcoming election, the question is why so many young men in particular are being drawn to the far right and what the consequences could be for a country that's deeply conscious of its Nazi past. GERMAN YOUTHS MARCHING 'RIGHT'

Pew research in 2024 found that more than 26% of German men had positive views of the AfD compared to more than 11% of women, and the share of men holding this opinion has risen 10 points since 2022.

She mainly shares dance, trend and lifestyle videos, but also pro-AfD content. Celina says she has faced insults, threats, and lost friends because of the views she has expressed.

Brychcy says she doesn't make money from promoting the AfD but does it because she believes in the cause and wants to "get a message across".

Her political ideals include wanting the return of military service, more support for mothers who want or need

Prof Abou-Chadi believes in the lon ger term, there could be an even more seismic change.

"And as soon as the more mainstream parties start giving up the 'firewall' or cordon sanitaire the far right will start cannibalising the right.

"It's very likely that, in many or most European countries, the far-right parties will be the main party on the right or already are," he says.

Parties like the Alternative Fur Deutschland (AfD) have worked hard to try and normalise themselves in the eves of the public.

While there are people in Germany and Europe who view the far right as an extremist, even anti-democratic, force - it appears that the 'normalisation' effort is working, not least of all among the young.

Israel bans entry of those denying October 7 massacre or working with ICC

MI News Service, Tel Aviv: As Israelis prepared to receive the bodies of four hostages, the Israeli Knesset on Wednesday passed legislation barring non-citizens from entering or residing in the country if they or their affiliated organizations deny the October 7 massacre or the Holocaust, or if they support international prosecution of Israeli security personnel.

The legislation, which was approved without opposition, builds on a 2017 amendment that barred providing visas and travel permits to individuals or organizations advocating boycotts of Israel.

Proposed by Michel Buskila of the New Hope-United Right party and originally initiated by New Hope MK Zeev Elkin, the law aims to strengthen Israel's ability to counteract what it described as "hostile elements" who "seek to harm the state." According to the bill's explanatory notes, existing legal measures were insufficient. The Knesset also advanced an-

We probably didn't put our best effort out the other night (against RCB) but we had the opportunity to put our best foot forward in this match and we did that. We still feel like there are areas where we can get better. It's been nice to win two close ones because it shows we're able to hold our composure to an extent and get over the line

Game of fine margins, crucial points on cards as NorthEast United FC host Bengaluru FC

SHILLONG (MEGHALAYA) : NorthEast United FC (NEUFC) are set to host Bengaluru FC (BFC) at the Jawaharlal Nehru Stadium in Shillong in the Indian Super League (ISL) 2024-25 on Friday. The ISL thus returns to the capital of Meghalaya after the first-ever league game was held there during the fixture between the Highlanders (NEUFC) and Mumbai City FC (MCFC) earlier this month, as per a release from ISL

Bengaluru FC have been winless in their last four games on the road, including two defeats on the bounce. However, the Blues (BFC) have had a promising goal-scoring season, having scored 36 goals, their second-highest in ISL histo-ry, with Sunil Chhetri leading the charts, courtesy of his 11 strikes.

The Blues will be buoyed by the fact that NorthEast United FC have not won against them in their previous five meetings. The two sides have played three draws in a row and another stalemate would mark the third time the Highlanders do so four straight times against a single opponent in the ISL

NorthEast United FC also have their home record to protect, since they last suffered a 0-2 defeat here against Mumbai City FC and the previous time they faced losses in consecutive matches in their backyard, in a single season, was in February 2023. Further, the Blues have never failed to score on the road against the Highlanders, netting eight times in six matches, and a strike in this encounter will mark their longest such sequence against any opponent. Both these teams are firmly in contention to qualify for the playoffs, as NorthÉast United FC are positioned fourth with 32 points from 21 games, whereas Bengaluru FC have garnered 31 points from 20 encounters and are sixth in the table. The tussle is tough with only three points separating the Highlanders from the seventh-placed Odisha FC (29).

The Highlanders have scored the third-most goals in ISL 2024-25 (39), with over 50% of those through Alaaeddine coming Ajaraie. In their last five games, NorthEast United FC have netted eight times - going scoreless in two encounters.

Jithin MS (6 goals and 8 assists) is one goal contribution away from becoming the fourth player to record 15+ goal contributions for NorthEast United FC. Jithin has scored once and assisted five times this season.

Bengaluru FC have kept six clean sheets this season, the thirdmost amongst all teams. However, they have recorded only one shutout in their previous 15 ISL encounters.

The two sides have played each other 17 times in the league, with NorthEast United FC winning twice and Bengaluru FC emerging victorious in eight games. Seven matches have produced draws. NorthEast United FC head coach Juan Pedro Benali asked his side to defend collectively in the coming match.

"The whole team needs to defend well because we are playing against a strong side. All of their players are dangerous and we need to take care of that," Benali said, as quoted from a release by ISL.

Bengaluru FC head coach Gerard Zaragoza lamented his team's form last month, but expressed hope following their 3-0 win in the last game against Jamshedpur FC.

"We were not doing well in January and we were not consistent. We bettered our performance in the last game though. We kept a clean sheet and that should be the way we need to play to arrive in the playoffs," he said.
